BILLY BURKE'S A BUTTE.

He Whipped His Wife Shamefully, So They Say on the Hill.

BUTTE, May 6.—Several weeks ago William Burke of Centerville beat his wife so shamefully that neighbors interfered and a warrant for his arrest was issued, but he disappeared and the police have been unable to find him until today. He returned some time during the day and was so glad to see his wife that he again beat her in order to show how really pleased he was. Deputy Sheriff Edwards happened upon the scene and to-night Burke sleeps in the county jailhouse. The offense is made more cruel by the fact that his wife is soon to become a mother.

In Memory of Tom Moore.

BUTTE, May 6.—The weekly entertainment of the Sheridan lyceum to-night was very good, and the attendance was large. The committee of arrangements on the Moore anniversary reported an elaborate programme, which was adopted by the lyceum. Some of the best artists in the city are on the programme for songs, instrumental solos and recitations. J. M. Kennedy of Anaconda has been selected as the orator of the day. His subject will be "Thomas Moore, the Poet and the Poet of Ireland." The whole affair will consist of an entertainment, banquet and dance.

BUTTE, May 6.—The robberies about town are still going on, and right under the noses of some of the police. Another daylight robbery was committed this afternoon. While Mrs. Slater was away for a short time from her room in the Canby building, at the corner of Montana and Park, the place was ransacked and the thieves got away with a lot of silverware and other property.

SILVER IS DOING IT

Butte's Politicians Stirred Up In Great Shape.

THEY CAN'T AGREE AT ALL

Many Are Not Yet Ready to Leave Their Old Party to Join Another of Which They Know Nothing.

BUTTE, May 6.—The council chamber of the city hall was packed full with young orators to-night. It was the occasion of the second meeting of the Silver club and the meeting showed a complete absence of representatives of the board of trade, which originally issued the call for the club, and also showed a conspicuous absence of political leaders in both the two great parties. Only George W. Irvin stood firm and steadfast on one side of the matter, answered the arguments of the other speakers as best he could, and succumbed to the inevitable.

Although the manifesto of the people's party declared it would have nothing further to do with the club, nevertheless the sentiment of the meeting was decidedly independent, and men who had been well known as strong advocates of one party or the other took apparent pleasure in announcing themselves for silver first, last and all the time. There were speakers to-night who have seldom or ever been heard in public meetings before, and many who were not known by name by the officers of the meeting.

A letter was received from Judge Barrett, president of the board of trade and temporary chairman of the club, stating that on account of a sprained ankle he found it impossible to be present, and also stating that he is solid for silver, but could not pledge himself to support the third party platform, not knowing what it would be. The letter was read by J. V. Long, secretary of the club, and several nominations were made for chairman. These were declined, but finally Charles Lane was chosen and accepted the position.

G. W. Irvin, as chairman of the committee to which the resolutions were referred, said that only himself and Mr. McGrath of the committee had met and they could not agree. The discussion was over the final plank of the resolutions which provided that in case either the republican or democratic party nominates a man for president who is known or believed to be opposed to free coinage of silver, that the club members pledge themselves not to vote for either.

Mr. Irvin made a majority report and George E. McGrath made a minority report. The committee was discharged without formally accepting either report, the resolutions completed having been really passed at the previous meeting.

Charles Lane expressed the opinion that the club was not going at things right. There should first be appointed a committee on organization. Mr. McGrath replied that the club was already organized and the only thing left to do is to sign the roll. Before this was done the resolutions were read over again.

Peter Breen then said that the report had gone abroad that the third party had captured the convention. Yet there was only one man, who had the result was no club, the independent voters would be to blame for it. I think their absence is a cowardly manner of sneaking out of the club. They expect to give us speeches to get out of the club and then go on and vote for one of the great parties. I think if we mean anything, let us mean we are for silver and stop all this beating about the bush. I am ready to sign that resolution.

Mr. McGrath said that he is a Montana first and a party man second. He was for free silver candidates. If a free trade club was being organized, it would be ridiculous for the club to advocate J. G. Blaine for president. As silver men the club could not advance a man opposed to silver. He would like to hear from Mr. Irvin, a leading republican, as to what the party proposes. He wanted to know whether that party is for its party first and Montana afterward.

Mr. Lane accused the previous speakers of merely talking for the applause of the galleries, but he thought there was more important business on hand. Silver legislation must be accomplished by the politicians backed by the people. It is all right for a few men to capture a meeting and pass resolutions, but will that accomplish anything? If the resolutions would accomplish anything, he would vote by all means to pass them. But he thought such resolutions would destroy the club. He moved that a committee of five be appointed on constitution and by-laws and from each of the three political parties and one working man and one capitalist of no pronounced political affiliations.

"I would like to know," said J. F. Holland, "where you would find men of no political affiliations?"

"Among the Chinamen," said J. P. Gilligan. Mr. Gilligan then took the floor and accused the previous speakers of talking to the galleries. He could not see how any friend of silver could refuse to sign the resolutions. Workmen were beginning to realize that they are no longer misshapen. It was a question of the people deserting their party, but of the party deserting the people.

S. P. Miles said the decision to be made was whether we are in favor of silver or not. He for one was for silver first, and let everything else be in the background. He did not care what party gave us free silver, he was for a party that would do so. He would place the interests of his state first and his party second.

A. F. Bray said that the interests of Montana are the interests of silver. He was a republican and always would be so long as its platform met with his approval, but he was opposed to any interests not consistent with the interests of his state. There is such a thing as a man being disgraced by his party. He believed even General Warren had gone so far as to state that his party was so corrupt he would not be found dead with it.

Speeches of greater or less length or more or less independence and more or less eloquence were made by E. L. Reber, P. F. Boland and a number of others. George W. Irvin then rose to remark that the speakers ahead of him were as full of fallacies as any crowd of men that could be found between Helena and Jerusalem. He ridiculed the statement of Mr. Breen that the republican leaders had not the courage to come to the meeting. He had been in Montana since 1863 and he had never entered a place in which he had not the courage to stand. He denounced the platform as prepared as narrow and unworthy of Montanans. As a republican he did not think one should declare desertion to his party before any national conventions have been held.

Mr. McGrath explained that the objectionable plank in the resolutions was merely a test applied to the republican and democratic parties to see how much they are in favor of free coinage.

It was then voted to sign the roll and 55 did so, comprising the most of those present. A committee of Messrs. Bray, Reber, Miles, McGrath and Evans was appointed to prepare a constitution and by-laws and canvass the town for signatures. The club adjourned until next Thursday evening.

IT'S A PRETTY MEN.

That Water Company Pulled Into Court Once More.

BUTTE, May 6.—Among several new legal actions commenced in the district court today was another one against John F. Cowan, and besides involving some pretty large figures incidentally sets forth what his present interest in the Butte City Water company is. James A. Talbot is also named as a defendant and the plaintiffs in the case are Ray & Leonard.

The complaint in the case alleges that on November 1, 1890, Cowan & Talbot were owners of 75 per cent, being 125,000 shares, of the capital stock of the Silver Bow Hydraulic Mining company. On that date the defendants offered the 75 per cent, of stock for sale to J. A. Coram of Massachusetts and J. F. Moffatt of Syracuse, N. Y., and agreed to deliver it, together with the remainder of the corporation, aggregating the entire capital stock, in consideration and upon the payment of $100,000 and for the further consideration that Coram and Moffatt, or their assigns, should deliver to them 1,000 shares of the capital stock of the Butte City Water company, a corporation to be thereafter organized under the laws of Montana.

Thereupon Coram and Talbot entered into an agreement with Ray & Leonard to the effect that if they would use their efforts and endeavor to procure and effect the completion of the contract upon the part of Coram and Moffatt, they would be paid a reasonable compensation for their services. Ray & Leonard then diligently sought and endeavored to bring about the sale and completion of the contract between the defendants and Coram and Moffatt. In this they were successful and the entire stock of the Silver Bow Hydraulic Mining company was delivered; the $100,000 in cash and 1,000 shares of the capital stock of the Butte City Water company was duly paid to Cowan & Talbot, all of which was brought about by Ray & Leonard and completion of their agreement.

Cowan & Talbot, however, it is alleged, failed to hold up their part of it and have wholly neglected and refused to comply with its terms and conditions. The plaintiffs claim, therefore, that $10,000 is only a reasonable compensation for the part they took to bring about the deal, and they ask judgment for that amount, together with costs in the case. Corbett & Welles and Charles R. Leonard are attorneys for the plaintiffs.

Another suit commenced today is against Dominick Berardi & Bro. by Achille Petrucci, through his attorneys, Keithly & Grice. The suit grows out of a contest over some Meadeville property which is now in litigation. The case is pending in the courts, but Berardi could not wait for the law's slow process and yesterday he took possession of the disputed property and proceeded to commence the erection of a building thereon.

Petrucci therefore came into court today and asked for an injunction, and a temporary restraining order was issued, together with an order to show cause why a permanent injunction should not be granted, and Saturday, May 14, was set for the hearing. Petrucci also asks for $500 damages.

A suit for the foreclosure of a lien was brought by W. R. Kenyon against Robert Oehner. The amount involved is only $135, but principal and interest and attorney's fees.

A petition was filed asking for further distributions in the Dovenspeck estate and an order was issued to show cause why it should not be made.

NOT SO MIGHTY SMART.

But Buxton Corinne Gives a Good Show After All.

BUTTE, May 6.—Corinne should have the ability to act better, sing better and dance better than she does, for she certainly tries hard enough and shows a commendable desire to please her audience. Her manager does her an injustice in leading the public to expect more than she can give. By the promises made her ability is judged in a very great measure and the result is often disappointing. She does well enough, that is, if one does not expect too much. She sings well, but Miss Maude Dixon, who appears with her, sings a great deal better. She dances well, but there are hundreds of sourests and variety performers who dance better. Corinne is pretty, but one can daily see a dozen prettier girls on the streets of Butte without waiting a block. Her looks and extroverted, upon which her advertising is based, are very shapely but there are three or four of her own company that show up very much better even in that respect. Corinne is not so old, but that practice can render her a winsome child on the stage.

But Corinne is not all there is of her show, for she has a good company and a large one and together they assist her in giving a very good entertainment. People who go to see a good company will come away satisfied, but the show goes only to see Corinne will be disappointed.

The company will give a matinee tomorrow and every lady attending will be presented with a handsome photograph and autograph of Corinne.

Among the rather small audience to-night was Mr. Jacobs, a member of the well-known firm of managers, of Jacobs & Pector, New York. He is on his way East.

The Value of One Blooded Animal. Electioneer was probably the most valuable horse that has ever been known to the world. He was the property of Senator Stanford, and left 90 descendants whose value aggregated $1,422,000. Among these are Sunol, Palo Alto, Arion and Advertiser. Besides the 90, whose value is known, there are yet at Palo Alto 100 more whose value is estimated at $2,275,000, making the total value of Electioneer's worth to Senator Stanford $3,697,000.

"Galigani" reports that a rather curious ceremony has taken place near Potters. The electric light has just been laid on in the parish of St. Philomena, and the bishop of the diocese solemnly blessed the dynamo. A special ritual had been composed for the ceremony.

IT'S IN THE BUTTE AIR

Political Rumors That Seem to Give Some Men Concern.

S. MULVILLE AND P. BREEN

They are Said to Be the Darlings of the Third Party's Heart—The Plans for the Missoula Convention.

BUTTE, May 6.—The Silver Bow republican delegation will leave for Missoula Monday morning, and the rails between Butte and Missoula are already getting hot. From the manner in which Chairman M. L. Holland and other leaders of the party are rattling around these days it would seem to some as though a hot box or something of that kind is anticipated. It is unofficially stated on the street corners, that rumors have arrived from across the range to the effect that four delegates to Missoula are to be selected from the East side, one from Missoula and the other one from Deer Lodge and Silver Bow counties together. The names of gentlemen prominently mentioned in connection with the trip to the republican convention at Missoula are L. H. Hershfield, Tom Power, acting senator for Montana, and Mr. Hammond of Missoula. Whether this slate is satisfactory to Silver Bow republicans cannot be learned from any official source. General Warren never was much of a talker, and George Irvin was too busy preparing silver club resolutions to say anything on the subject.

It is known, however, that unwonted preparations are being made to secure a full representation from Silver Bow county at the convention. All those who cannot attend have been asked to notify Chairman Holland at once, so that their respective alternates can be notified to get on board.

"It's going to be a regular picnic," said one of the leading republicans, "and we want all republicans who can get away to join the excursion whether they will be members of the delegation or not."

According to the sentiments expressed in Butte, there is an impression that there should be two delegates at least from Silver Bow county to Missoula and the men most generally talked of are Gen. C. S. Warren and W. E. Hall of Walkerville. General Warren says he does not care to go as a delegate. He is going to Missoula on his own hook, and has his quarters engaged and will accept a position as alternate or as nothing at all. He does not care about that. It is likely, however, that if the general is not on the list it will be Lee Mantle. There is a desire frequently expressed up and down Main street in republican resorts that Montana shall be represented by republicans with no strings on them and that no federal office holders or office seekers shall be on the list.

The train is to start at 6 o'clock Monday morning, which will be convenient both to republicans who get up early and to republicans who stay up all night.

One week from to-night the people's party will inaugurate its campaign in the city. The meeting will be held with Ralph Beaman as speaker. The people's party is beginning to cut quite a figure in the predictions as to next fall's political outlook. The talk is that Samuel Mulville will be the candidate of the people's party for governor and Peter Breen for congress.

W. W. Adams intends nominating Thomas Couch for delegate to Missoula and he does not care who knows it. Mr. Adams represents the Couch faction in the delegation which goes to Missoula Monday.

A Congruity that the Beautiful Suggests.

A Shrine at Which Poe Knelt.

There's music in the voice of the bell.
There's grace in its swaying to and fro,
and there's beauty in the graceful lines that mold its shapely contour. It is a shrine at which the gifted but unhappy Poe knelt and listened to the chiming of "The Bells" that will continue to sway in beautiful melody till the harmony of poetic songs shall forever be hushed.
That the modiste's art should kneel at the same shrine and with the same happy results is a congruity that the affinity of the beautiful in life suggests and hence the unprecedented popularity of the bell skirt of which this cut is a fair simile:

We have these new and stylish skirts, either with or without blazer or reefer attachment in all desirable fabrics and colors and at a great variety of prices.
The fabrics include Bedford Cords,
